GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SCIENCE

LEHMAN COLLEGE'S DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL, GEOGRAPHIC AND GEOLOGICAL SCIENCES

Geographic Information Science (GISc) Certificate Program Undergraduate and Graduate Levels

GISc is a fast-growing computer technology field involving mapping and analysis of spatial data. Experience in GISc can lead to enhanced career opportunities in such diverse fields as public health, criminal justice, urban planning, economic development, environmental analysis, government, ecology, hazard and risk assessment, and education. Evening classes are offered for this 17-credit program starting late August and in spring starting late January.

To register for spring 2009 classes, please submit your application to the Lehman Admissions Office no later than January 5, 2009.

For further information, please contact
