IBA 135 – Returning Adult Student Seminar

Learning Inside & Outside the Classroom (WI).

Schedule: Three evening sections and one Saturday section — see below for days/times and instructors

This course will introduce students to principles of cognitive psychology and neuroscience that have a direct bearing on becoming a high performing student. Topics include attention, memory, motivation, and study skills. Students will develop strategies for managing the challenging and increasing workload of returning to school and be able to apply this knowledge as learners, employees and for those with children, as parents. Students will also have the opportunity to explore learning in the context of current or future career prospects. Highly recommended for all first or second semester students. Four sections available:

Evening sections all meet 6–8:40 pm : Monday, Rivera. Class #51483; Thursday, Lozada. Class #51399; Friday, Jones. Class #53876; Saturday section meets 9–11:40 am: Clarke. Class #51489

IBA 250 – Interdisciplinary Studies of People and Culture

The Art and Science of Relationships (WI), Grizzel. Class #51522

Schedule: Monday, 6–8:40pm

Humans are social creatures and exist in a social context. While social behavior occurs in the here and now, relationships are also impacted by the past. This course will explore the interpersonal dynamics that occur in a person's life to gain a better understanding of relationships using empirical research and information from psychology and sociology. Variations of relationships will be examined (i.e. intimate, personal, business and familial).

IBA 250 – Interdisciplinary Studies of People and Culture

Bullying: The Toxicity of Our Culture (WI), Grizzel. Class #51509

Schedule: Friday, 6–8:40pm

This course takes a psychosocial perspective to examine bullying online, in person, at school, and in the workplace, based on age, gender, clique, gang, ethnicity, sexual orientation, power or position. The focus is on recognizing, understanding, and learning how to deal with its complexities. The course will use research journal articles, books and current news topics to develop an understanding of "bullying" in its many forms and manifestations in the 21st century.

IBA 252 – Interdisciplinary Studies in Politics, Power and Change

Justice, Justice You Shall Pursue: A Historical and Contemporary Look at the Ongoing Fight for Civil Rights and Justice in America (WI), Aquino-Rodriguez. Class #51539

Schedule: Tuesday, 6-8:40pm

The constant fight for equal rights reveals the United States as an ongoing project in which, from the creation of the nation, one group or another is always pursuing justice and full enjoyment of the privileges of American citizenship. Despite the principles put forward in the Declaration of Independence, every group (except rich white men) has had to fight to obtain full recognition of rights and protections under the law. We will look at the long list of civil rights fights that have defined this country from struggles from slavery through Jim Crow, Indigenous Peoples rights, Women's suffrage and equal rights, selective immigrant discrimination, and LGBTQ discrimination.

IBA 252 – Interdisciplinary Studies in Politics, Power and Change

The Immigrant Experience (WI), Aquino-Rodriguez. Class #51525

Schedule: Wednesday, 6-8:40pm

This course will explore the experiences of immigrants from their decisions to come to America to the struggles and complexities of becoming Americans. Whether propelled out by nations under economic pressure or pulled in by the promise of the imagined American Dream, immigrants are among the main protagonists in the history of the United States. We will examine how different waves of immigrants have impacted the evolution of the United States, while struggling themselves to be recognized as Americans. The course will emphasize the study of the immigrant experience by looking at immigrants not only as the subject, but as the authors of their own history.

IBA 253 – Interdisciplinary Studies in Artistic and Literary Expression

Women in Film Noir (WI), Holy. Class #51529

Schedule: Saturday, 12-2:40pm

Female identity and sexuality in film noir. Emphasis on analytical approaches such as gender performance, feminist film theory, and intersectionality. Film noir examples may include Double Indemnity, The Postman Always Rings Twice, One False Move, Jackie Brown, and Jessica Jones.

IBA 254 – Interdisciplinary Studies in Science Literacy

Food, Health and the Environment (WI), Judd. Class #51536

Schedule: Thursday, 6-8:40pm

This class will explore the ways food, health and the environment are inter-connected. We will look at the way food is produced and consumed in this country and how food affects our personal health as well as the health of the planet. We will consider how our personal health is affected by exposure to environmental factors such as water and air pollution, indoor air pollution, toxic contamination, etc. Additionally, we will explore how health care that emphasizes environmental responsibility and protecting the health of patients in a holistic manner that is beneficial for everyone.

IBA 360 – Prior Learning Assessment: Portfolio Development

Prior Learning Assessment: Portfolio Development (WI), Fauntleroy. Class #51537

Schedule: Monday, 6-8:40pm, Hybrid format. Class will be held on campus on 2/7/22, 3/7/22, 4/7/22, 5/16/22, Zoom all other times. Students must be vaccinated to attend on-campus classes.

This course is designed to teach students the organization and structure needed to develop a formal portfolio of their alternative learning experiences. Many adult students have gained substantial learning through work or volunteer experience. The ability to write a comprehensive and convincing document of these experiences is critical for positive evaluation and awarding of credits. To receive credit for prior learning, student must demonstrate that learning is college level in a discipline taught at Lehman College. This is a three credit course, in addition to the 1–15 credits which may be awarded for the portfolio. Prerequisite: 60 total credits of which 12 must be at Lehman. For permission to register, please email pamela.hinden@lehman.cuny.edu.

Please note: PLA credits do not count towards residency requirements and are not indexable. They can only be used to fulfill liberal arts electives. Please speak with your advisor to determine if you can utilize PLA credits.
