COLLEGE

THE CLASS OF 2021

Commencement Ceremony

Thursday, May 27, 2021

Message from President Daniel Lemons

Greetings and congratulations to the graduates of the Class of 2021.

I wish we were gathering in person today on that wonderful space with the Old Gym in the background and beautiful trees around us. I have heard the same wish from many of you. When we celebrate this huge milestone, we want to be together, thousands of us. You graduates and your families deserve to celebrate, not just today, but in the weeks and months to come. So, we are doing what we have done over the past year and a half, making the best of our situation, and doing it with grit, determination, sometimes humor, and with a desire to be a community that cares.

As president at Lehman for the past two years, I feel deprived, as you do, in never being able to participate in an in-person graduation in that role. But I am still joyful today on this occasion because circumstances cannot diminish its significance or the fact that you have reached a major milestone in your lives and are moving forward toward the next one.

I've chosen to talk to you today with this amazing new installation behind me. It is the result of the work of a group of faculty and staff members who were asked to re-envision this space so would reflect Lehman College as it is now. In the center is this great quote from the college's namesake, Herbert H. Lehman, and these photos are you, the people that make up Lehman College. I hope you'll get to be here soon to see it in person.

Now I want to turn to disruption, surprise and change.

Those are descriptions of your final time at Lehman College. We can react to those realities with shock, fear and withdrawal, or we can find ways to use them for our own good. As I have prepared to address you on this momentous day, I have been giving a lot of thought to how we struggle to understand why things happen the way they do. We were warned by experts for years that a major devastating pandemic was coming, and I never doubted that. Yet, when it did come, I was as taken by surprise as was almost everyone else.

Since I've been president at Lehman, I've often thought about how unpredictable life is and how we cannot know how the things we do at each stage of our lives prepares us for the next. Even when you know you're taking a detour, and you are pretty sure that part of your life will not relate to your future, there's really no way to know. What I have learned is that all my experiences have, in some way, been important later on.

Let me relate some of my experiences prior to coming to Lehman College. When I arrived at Lehman College, I had been working within CUNY for a long time – I am a professor emeritus of biology at the City College of New York and I collaborated for years with colleagues on bioheat transfer and vascular mechanics research, and also on new ways of teaching college science. I've worked as a dean of several quite different CUNY programs, been an associate provost and a provost, among other leadership roles. I was also an elected official when I came to Lehman. I co-founded an institute outside CUNY– related to alleviating poverty through international energy development projects -- during a year of leave from CUNY between 2012 and 2013.

I mention these things not because I want to share my resume or CV with you and its highlights. What has struck me as I recount these experiences, is that, first of all, many of them were not part of a plan I had created, and in fact most of them were entirely unplanned. Maybe because of that, they didn't always seem connected or likely to be particularly useful in the years or decades ahead. But as it turned out, they all were. I haven't followed a straight or predictable path during my career, not that there is anything wrong with doing that, and while being Lehman's president these two years, it has seemed like all those experiences prepared me for what was needed, particularly during the last 15 months.

Of course, my experience as a professor and a CUNY administrator were important background for being president. But, having been in electoral politics in New York also became very important; to have those connections and to be able to use them effectively in the Bronx and the City. Certainly, having a background in biology came in handy during a global pandemic, particularly in its early phases. Having gained an understanding of how insufficient infrastructure impacts health, education and the economy of local areas has also been important for me while helping shape our institutional response to the pandemic and its aftermath. Actually, I can't think of any aspect of my varied career path that hasn't been useful to me as Lehman's president.

I predict that for each of you graduates of 2021 the same thing will be true – and let me include in that prediction not only graduating students, but also family and friends, and staff and faculty of the college. You go through life and you pick things up, and you think, “Well, I've taken a new direction, and what I've done in the past is no longer so useful to me.” But you actually don't know that. You should never discount any of those things you've learned; they will most likely come into play in ways you can't imagine now. Some of those things may turn out to be the most important ones you could have in your life's toolkit.

One of the important consequences of that is that you can make a wrong turn and have to back up and change direction, but even that wrong turn will very likely teach you things that will help you later on. I can promise you that. Another consequence of this, what shall we call it, “unintended learning,” is that we should embrace change and do things that are not on the prescribed path. We all have a choice at this moment in time, entering the post-Covid era, which can be an inflection point in a good way, or an occasion to return as much as possible to the familiar. That is what we are hearing – “return to normal.” The unwanted, and in most ways, terrible disruption we have all experienced the past 15 months has forced us to learn at a pace we could not have imagined possible two years ago. We were forced to, but none-the-less, we have all become much more adept in the digital world we have been inhabiting. Our days and weeks have followed different patterns. Much of this we will be happy to leave behind, but we have also changed in ways that we should retain and build upon. They are going to be useful as we move forward. We just don't know yet all the ways that will be true.

Class of 2021, these realities are unique to you. You could dwell on the difficult challenge of completing your degree and the still unsettled economy you enter after graduation. But that uniqueness can work to your advantage as well. You have had to be flexible, adaptable and persistent in ways no other graduating class has. You should have gained confidence in what you can accomplish in the midst of this daunting world of the past 15 months. Wear it like a badge of honor. Use it like a shield. Make it part of your toolkit. Be proud!

I want to return to the theme of unexpected and unwanted change, and unanticipated results with one more example. Being in a pandemic it has been natural to think about health and disease, and I have been thinking about how the war on cancer began, and how it ended up. When it began, the major focus was on viruses. After twenty years, and billions of dollars for research, understanding viruses turned out not to be the key to curing cancer. But when AIDS came along shortly thereafter, all that prior research on viruses was critically important in understanding and learning how to treat HIV. All that research didn't help much with cancer so it seemed like a failure, a wrong turn, but it was critical for responding to HIV, which didn't even exist in the US when the war on cancer was launched. We've experienced that same kind of result with the coronavirus pandemic.

Research on mRNAs was a fringe area for years. In fact, the most important person in developing an understanding of how mRNAs could be used therapeutically, Dr. Katalin Kariko, hasn't even had a secure faculty position through most of her career. Yet without her work, the two most successful vaccines we have, Pfizer and Moderna, would not exist. She didn't know about coronavirus through all her years of work. In fact, for a number of years she was trying to use mRNA to improve blood vessels for heart bypass surgery. But that eventually led to the idea of treating infectious diseases, and I along with hundreds of millions we have had one of those vaccines, are the beneficiaries of both her persistence and her ability to see how a solution that didn't work for one problem, could work for another.

Disruption, surprise and change—they have been our constant companions the past 15 months. Let's all of us commit to using what we've learned at Lehman College and to expect that we will be applying it in ways we can't imagine now. Remember that everything you've experienced has lessons for your unknown future; value all that you've learned, good and otherwise, and remember to enjoy every moment as much as you can.

Congratulations, again, Class of 2021. And thank you for the lessons you've shared with me that now are part of the memories I will cherish in the years ahead.

Message from Provost Peter O. Nwosu

Dear Students,

Today, I congratulate you, the Lehman College Class of 2021, not only for your academic achievement, but also for your strength, your perseverance, and your belief in yourself.

You rose to the challenge of adjusting to a constantly evolving situation—one that has required many of us to suspend some long-term expectations for the future. Over the past 15 months, you found a way to move forward in spite of myriad hardships and loss, all the while, holding fast to plans and hopes for what comes next, despite not really knowing what that might be. Whether your life's work helps sustain your own family, your community, your city, the world, or all of these things, your Lehman education and Lehman values are a foundation to build on, even in the midst of uncertainty.

Last year, only three months into the pandemic, I reminded our 2020 graduates that “the future is always an unknown, in all circumstances, and in any year.” However, as we have seen this past year, the unknown also presents endless possibility. And that is what I want you to think about now: What is possible—for you, for the world in which we live, and how you will shape our future. I join our dedicated faculty and staff as well your families and significant others in congratulating each of you.

Message from Associate Director, Alumni Engagement & Annual Fund Robert Pagan

Dear Class of 2021 Graduate,

Congratulations! Your endurance, patience, and persistence in the face of the pandemic is an inspiration to us all. We are so proud of you.

You are now a member of the distinguished Lehman College alumni community of more than 90,000 proud and accomplished graduates worldwide.

As a graduate you automatically become a member of the Lehman College Alumni Association once you activate your membership. It is a great way for you to stay connected and have a life-long relationship with the College. Alumni membership entitles you to benefits, services, and discounts, in addition to invitations to many social, educational, and cultural events. What's more, alumni membership is free to new graduates for one year; thereafter, it's only $25 annually. To activate your free membership, click here.

As a new graduate, I hope you will take full advantage of the resources available to you and let us know how you are doing. We take pride in your accomplishments and are strong advocates for your personal and professional success.

Herbert H. Lehman (1878–1963)

Herbert H. Lehman represents the highest standards of honor and integrity in public service. During four terms as Governor of New York State and two terms in the U.S. Senate, he strove to abolish social injustice. He opposed discrimination while supporting reforms that protected union membership, established unemployment insurance, and began programs for slum clearance and the construction of low-rent housing. As the first Director General of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration (UNRRA), he supervised the shipment of more than 25 million tons of supplies to refugees of World War II, the largest international relief effort in history. In so doing, he created the forerunner of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

UNRRA also led to the establishment of UNICEF, UNESCO, WHO, and other social agencies of the world organization.

Lehman College, the only senior college of The City University of New York in the Bronx, was formally dedicated in Governor Lehman's name on March 28, 1969, the 91st anniversary of his birth. Today, nearly 14,000 undergraduate and graduate students are enrolled in more than 140 degree programs. Each spring, the College commemorates Governor Lehman's birth, and its dedication in his name, by inviting a distinguished guest to deliver the Herbert H. Lehman Memorial Lecture.

Lehman Scholars Program & Macaulay Honors College at Lehman College

LEHMAN SCHOLARS PROGRAM (LSP)

LSP, founded in 1980, is Lehman's liberal arts honors program, designed for accomplished and highly motivated students with the desire and ability to pursue a more independent liberal arts course of study. The program offers the advantages of a small, intimate college, including special honors sections, seminars, and individual academic advising and personal mentoring. MHC, CUNY's universitywide liberal arts honors college, was founded in 2001 and is CUNY's most highly selective college, located on eight of its senior college campuses. LSP's more than 20 years of history preceding MHC assured and reinforced the successful growth of MHC at Lehman College.

MACAULAY HONORS COLLEGE (MHC)

Macaulay students receive a dual degree from both their specific home campus and Macaulay Honors College. Macaulay Scholars are personally guided through their four years by a Macaulay academic advisor. The advising and mentoring aspects of both LSP and MHC are some of the hallmarks of the two programs, designed to maximize their students' college careers. Both LSP and MHC have seminar-driven curricula encouraging vigorous, holistic, and comprehensive examination, through discussion on topics of immediate and long-range concern for improving the human condition. The two programs interact with one another in shared seminars and classes, forming a rewarding and rich scholarly and social community. It is the conscious aim of the faculty who teach and guide students in LSP and MHC to develop sentient, highly informed, reflective, versatile citizens who can both understand and support the needs, wants, and welfare of others, as well as pursue their own personal interests and goals.

Undergraduate Awards

AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN UNDERGRADUATE STUDIES

2021 Winner: Carlos Perez Valle

Carlos Perez Valle is a Speech Language Pathology Major, who graduated with a 4.0 GPA. Besides his academic achievements, he was a of several awards for his activism for inclusion and equity in the field of Speech Language Pathology. Carlos has consistently demonstrated both academic excellence as well as outstanding leadership and commitment to the discipline of speech-language pathology through his recognized advocacy for inclusion and equity of minority students in programs in speech-language pathology and for the promotion of public awareness of communication disorders in children and adults.

This award is given to a student who has demonstrated excellence in being educated, empowered and engaged in their academic studies. The recipient has demonstrated outstanding academic achievement by graduating summa cum laude with a 4.0 GPA, and also has excelled in disciplinary and/or co-curricular activities related to their major, thus modeling excellence as an empowered young scholar who shows engagement in their discipline.

OUTSTANDING ACADEMIC ACHIEVEMENT (4.0)

A certificate is given to each student with a perfect 4.0 GPA.

THE GLOBAL CITIZENSHIP AWARD

2021 Winner: Leslie Ferreira

Leslie Ferreira, is a Business Administration major who has served as a global ambassador for the Office of International Programs and Community Engagement. She is a leader in the Peace Corps Prep program and is now certified as a global citizen. She exemplifies why teaching global local is necessary for Lehman College students to gain a global perspective from right here in the Bronx. As summer global ambassador for IPCE in 2020, Leslie not only seized opportunities for cross-cultural learning but she created them. During that summer, she focused on spreading inclusivity by creating a list of resources to engage students in thoughtful conversation through literature and media. Even after her summer with us, Leslie continued to bring us enriching opportunities that could be shared with our students. She is a true advocate for her peers and a source of inspiration to her community through her efforts with Jumpstart and the Bronx Recovery Corps as well as the multiple students groups she is a member of on campus. Let me know if you need anything else!

This award is given to a student who has exemplified global citizenship and service during their time at Lehman College. This student has embraced unique and creative ways to engage with communities across the globe in areas including, but not limited to, study abroad, international service-learning, global studies, and Peace Corps Prep.

EXCELLENCE IN LEADERSHIP AWARD

2021 Winner: Shantel Munoz,

Shantel Munoz, is a Health Education and Promotion Major (with concentration in Community Health and Nutrition) with a 3.8 GPA, who started as a community engagement intern with the Department of International Programs and Community Engagement in the summer of 2020; the first few months of the pandemic. As our office scrambled to find ways to connect with students, Shantel took an active role in strengthening our social media presence and our strategies for student outreach. Shantal was selected as a Peer Educator throughout the 2020-2021 academic year, where she continued to approach tasks with a cheerful attitude and became a great office representative organizing many of our volunteer events, while planning for social distancing, remote activities and meaningful engagement. Shantel will move forward to accomplish great things as she seeks out opportunities that focus on community development.

This award recognizes a student who has shown outstanding leadership during his or her time at Lehman College. Through innovation, motivation, initiative, and perseverance, this person has demonstrated a commitment to creating positive change in our campus community.

Time is one of the most valuable assets in life and remains essential toward molding us as individuals. Some moments may seem hopeless, and uncertainty rings in our ears, while others give us the impression we are moving in the right direction. Whichever your path, know that every instance is a learning experience and a stepping stone toward growth.
