LEHMAN
COLLEGE

Message from the President

Daniel Lemons, President

Good evening, and congratulations to all of you on your achievements during a time of great transition.

The past 15 months have been challenging to say the least. You may feel that this academic year, and the one that preceded it, has required much more of all of us emotionally, professionally, and academically than perhaps any other in our lifetime.

You have not only met those demands with grace and perseverance, you have managed to excel. It is for that excellence that we gather tonight to share in the pride of the entire campus community, and in the pride you should have in yourself for your hard work to get here.

Every year of study completed and every degree that is earned is a major accomplishment.

I am so proud of what all students at Lehman College have achieved even in the face of daunting circumstances. And I am particularly pleased to acknowledge you for your noteworthy achievement that goes beyond earning credits and degrees and has taken your learning to an even higher level.

You have done that by putting in the extra time and effort to master your subjects of study. You will carry that learning forward with you after you graduate and I know you will represent Lehman College well.

Your future successes will reflect well on the College, and the students who follow you will be the beneficiaries.

Your class is a special one, advancing in your studies during such a pivotal and transitional time for the nation. Seize this fluid time in our history to seek out the paths that feel best for you.

While I know hearing about the new normal makes it tempting to slip back into old ways that may not have been the best ways to begin with, see if you can't take some of what you have learned over the past year to enrich your life going forward.

Congratulations again. I thank you for the lessons you've shared with me that now are part of the memories I will cherish in the years ahead and I wish you all the best.

Message from the Provost

Peter O. Nwosu,
Provost and Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Student Success

It is no small achievement to graduate with honors—and to do so in this midst of a profound disruption like the pandemic is an achievement beyond most. Indeed, you, the Class of 2021, haven't simply weathered the chaotic global events of the past year. Instead, you've done something truly remarkable: You've stepped into your role as future leaders and embraced your part in building a better, stronger world. In the past 15 months, many of you have experienced hardship, disappointment, and loss. None of that should be minimized. At the same time, however, you have learned to face an uncertain future with resilience, hope, and the steadfast belief in yourself that makes both possible. Today I join our dedicated faculty and staff who have been there with you in celebrating your commitment to excellence, not only as honors students but also as people who have both embraced challenges and endured hardship.

That one little word, “and,” is very important. The kind of excellence we are celebrating goes beyond academic success, and I believe your accomplishment was not gained in spite of hardship. Rather, it reflects all of the challenges you have faced—and may continue to face—whether they have been painful, inspired you to reach higher or a little of both.

The fact that you are here today, ready to go forward in the midst of lingering uncertainty, tells me that. Although we are moving into a recovery phase, we know the challenges of the past year are not over. Some may be familiar, and some will be new—but this was as true five years ago as it is today. The difference is that, in addition to your honors courses, you have had a 15-month seminar in navigating challenges of all kinds simultaneously and rising to all of them. Whether or not you feel that you succeeded, I guarantee that each of you has become an expert in this field. I believe that this accomplishment says more about you than your GPA. It is a testament to your capabilities and your strength, and a singular honor in itself. Congratulations.

Teacher of the Year

Brian Murphy,
Associate Professor and Chair of Department of Computer Science

Brian Murphy

I offer congratulations to the Lehman College graduating class of 2021 with additional commendations for those graduating with honors. You have strived for and realized this important milestone in your lives, while navigating turbulent times. This makes your achievements that much more admirable.

You can go far with a Lehman College education. Since the early 1990s, students have heard me repeat this variant of my parents' more general mantra: "You can go far with a good education." I cannot tell you how many times I heard this as I grew up in the Bronx. My parents were not themselves college educated. My father drove a taxi to support a family of six and my mother stayed home to raise my brothers and I while we were young. My brothers and I did receive quality educations as my parents hoped we would. In fact, I am a proud Lehman College Alum, as are two of my brothers, my wife, her sister, some of my cousins, and many of my friends; all of us representing the first generation of our families to attain college educations. Like for so many before and after us Lehman College was the catalyst that helped make it possible for each of us to move up and out of poverty and/or the working class and into the middle class.

On a stroll down the campus you can admire the many bannered lampposts touting achievements of Lehman College alumni. These alums include government officials, industry leaders, and many more prominent individuals. This is no surprise to me. In my decades teaching at Lehman College, I have witnessed the lives of so many students and their families transformed for the better via a high quality Lehman College education. Receiving updates on the many successes of my former students is a major highlight of each academic year.

For faculty, it is a great joy and privilege to play a role in the metamorphosis students experience between their first arrival at Lehman College and their graduation. Through hard work and dedication to your studies you have now come to possess the same key to future success that has provided opportunities for many before you. I am so pleased that you now join me and many of my loved ones among the ranks of Lehman College Alum. This should be the beginning of great achievements for you. After all, you can go far with a Lehman College education, even if you follow my example and do not depart at all.

William E. Macaulay Honors College at Lehman College

Gary Schwartz,
Director of the Lehman Scholars Program and the William E. Macaulay Honors College at Lehman College

This is my last opportunity to appear with you before I retire in August after a full fifty-two years.

I have been teaching at Lehman since September of 1969, a momentous year when the Mets won the World Series, and I have been directing honors programs at the college since 1980, a forty-year run which I have looked upon as my sincere and profound duty to the students I teach, advise, and attempt to gently guide to making the very most out of their usually four years here. It is a hard task to advise with dedication, as any of my selfless colleagues in the advising office in Shuster Hall know; they are the real heroes here anyway.

What I have done since 1980 is what I did before 1980: talk with students, listen carefully, and make informed suggestions about managing their careers here, enabling them to reach their goals and be successful as graduates in the so-called "real world." As time went on I added two other programs to the work I shouldered with LSP. Never did I think of these programs as "mine." They belong to Lehman College, as I belong to Lehman College. The work is multifaceted and highly demanding. It's a 24½ hour-a-day job. The work I did as honors director was engaging and detailed, and I cannot tell you how satisfying it was.

All of you who have made it this far and deserve college-wide honors are not just heroic, you are mythological. You are all Bronx Legends. It's enough to have to face what you had to face in your daily lives before Covid-19, and then you were put to an excruciating soul-killing test, forced inside and online. I went five weeks without touching another human being in March and April of last year. You need no further proof of your ability to deal with catastrophic events; you have definite harmony with the famed Greatest Generation who fought World War Two. For one year and two months you faced death every day.

You have emerged alive and your strength attained and exercised is going to be with you for the rest of your days, along with the Lehman College-Wide Honors Degree you have earned.

My advice to you is simple. Commit yourselves to your communities, whether you stay in the Bronx or the island boroughs or in the vibrant towns in the counties outside of New York City. I think that commitment to community was the best approach to a meaningful life for me. Invest your effort into growing your community. I have been involved here for two and a half generations if you consider a generation to be twenty years; a college generation is standardly four years, so figuring that way I have been here for thirteen generations. I stayed here because this is where I could do the most good. I have seen astonishing changes, great growth, and vast improvement. That's what one gets when one stays in a community, a guaranteed dividend, but you have to be around to take part in the construction.

It has been an honor and a privilege for me to serve the students of Lehman College for over half a century. I believe that the effort you have put into educating yourselves will serve you for the rest of your long lives and that you will be the key to your success. Remember us! We never forget you.

Honors Convocation

Celebrating the Highest Achievements of Honors Students

Congratulations on receiving College honors and graduating summa cum laude, magna cum laude, or cum laude!

Herbert H. Lehman College's 13th annual Academic Honors Celebration commends the highest academic achievements of its students earning recognition in their academic disciplines. It has been a Lehman tradition for more than a decade to celebrate your achievement at the Honors Convocation at the Performing Arts Center where the president, provost, deans, faculty, family, and friends are in attendance to congratulate you on this tremendous accomplishment.

Be sure to take in the history and significance of Latin College honors and cords, the Lehman Scholars and Macaulay Honors programs, and special academic awards. Most importantly, this booklet was designed to commemorate your academic success.

As you make your way through the Honors Celebration booklet, you will see all your fellow honors students, their accomplishments, their plans, and their thank you messages. This is a very special moment in your life, and we want you to enjoy it and to share it proudly with those who most assisted in your accomplishments.

Congratulations and enjoy this very special honor.

2021 Honors Convocation Committee led by Chair Dr. Victor Brown, Associate Provost for Academic Programs and Educational Effectiveness.

Latin Honors at Lehman College

College-wide honors, or “Latin honors,” are expressed in the Latin language to bestow a sense of ancient tradition, authority, mysterious power, and majesty to the attainment of exceptionally high academic achievement throughout your college career. They link you with the formidable ancient Romans who built the city of Rome in the part of Italy they called Latium. The language they spoke was named after its place of origin, thus “lingua Latina,” or Latin.

At Lehman, these honors are distinguished by the Latin phrases:

Cum Laude, “with praise,” awarded to students with a GPA of 3.5-3.74

Magna Cum Laude, “with great praise,” awarded to students with a GPA of 3.75-3.84

Summa Cum Laude, “with highest praise,” awarded to students with a GPA of 3.8-4.0

Remember this celebration of your singular attainment: You have touched the stars as students and have this measure of that achievement for all time. The Latin honors on your diplomas should remind you not only of what you have attained but of the achievements we hope your futures hold.

Latin Honors Cords

At Lehman College, the modern tradition of honors cords’ three different colors signify the three levels of Latin honors:

Keynote Student Speaker Remarks

Aissatou Diallo

School of Health Sciences, Human Services, and Nursing
Health Services Administration

I am very honored to speak to you tonight and have invited my aunt to be here with me, Kadiatou Diallo, since she and her son have played such an important role in my life.

Like all my fellow honors students, I am filled with gratitude to all those who helped me on my journey here tonight—the wonderful Lehman staff, my teachers, my advisors, my classmates, and my study team. A special thank you to David Ashley, for his many contributions to my education. I am grateful to my family, my Mom, my three handsome boys, my sisters and nieces.

But most of all, I am grateful to my cousin Amadou Diallo who was taken from us in 1999. He had lived and travelled throughout Africa and Asia and studied in the best schools in these areas. But he wanted to make a better life for himself. He wanted a strong education in technology. Before he came to the U.S. in 1996, he told his mother: “I am ready. I have the tickets, the passport, the visa. I am going to America. I want to go to America. But there will be a day when I come back, and I am able to take care of everyone.” He was determined to make it on his own and to set an example for his sister and brothers. He brought with him his book by Martin Luther King Jr.

He came to the Bronx, 1157 Wheeler Ave. He wrote his mother that he saw in the faces and movements of the people in New York that there was a “shared feeling that there was no other place they would rather be.” Things went well for him. He got the first job he interviewed for, processing orders for computers. He worked nine or ten hours a day. He prayed in a storage room on a mat he kept there.

However, his roommates warned him about crime in the neighborhood, and the police sometimes singling out black men without a reason. But Amadou was an idealist. He trusted the police and told his family: “It’s safe here, I’m not worried.”

Amadou spoke with his mother on January 31, 1999 and told her. “Mom, I’m so happy, I have finally saved enough money, and I’m going to college.” Four days later he was shot 41 times by four plainclothes policemen. He was unarmed, standing outside his own house. He was only 23 years old.

He was shot by police who claimed they were searching for a rape suspect. They came upon Amadou and thought he was reaching for a gun when he put his hand into his pocket, when all he was reaching for were the keys to his house. He had no criminal record, not even a traffic ticket. In 2000 the four policemen were acquitted of all charges.

What happened to Amadou made the headlines of the newspapers. There were protests. The news tagged him as “the unarmed West African street vendor.” As my aunt has said the news wanted to portray Amadou as “The faceless, hunched over, soda selling, street vendor. . . more expendable than the actual young man, college bound, a world traveler.” And after three years of living in New York, being a “part of a neighborhood . . . selling, buying, eating, rooting for teams, kicking a ball in the playgrounds, going to the movies. . . [he was] not just a West African but a New Yorker, too.” But he was also “the thirty-ninth young Guinean man to be flown home from America in a coffin in the last five years.”

While Amadou’s dreams, wonderful plans and aspirations ended on Feb. 4, 1999, his influence has lived on. Mrs. Diallo wrote a book in 2003, My Heart Will Cross This Ocean: My Story, My Son, Amadou. At Bronx Community College, where Amadou had planned to study, she set up the Amadou Diallo Foundation, which provides scholarships and helps students, like Amadou, who are immigrants and are having difficulty paying for their education.

On the corner of Westchester Ave and Wheeler there is a sign that designates this “Amadou Diallo Place.” That sign will be there forever, it is where he died. It symbolizes that Amadou will always be a part of New York and its people.

And then there is the inspiration for me. Amadou and I lived in the same building on Wheeler Ave., he was on the first floor, I was on the second. We would talk often. I would make him dinner. He would help me with English. He was a quiet, shy, timid man, but not with me. Two days before he died, he made me peanut butter soup, and kidded me by saying it was made by one of his roommates. When I said I liked it, he laughed and said: “I made it, but I would only tell you if you liked it.” He got his recipes from his mother and loved to cook for his friends and roommates.

The day he was killed I was out of town and three months pregnant. Often, I wish I had been home because I would have cooked for him when he came home late that night after a long day’s work. Instead, when he came home, he went to the store, got some take-out food, and was shot one minute later.

As he helped me with my English, he continues to help me. When I went back to school after raising a family, sometimes I would feel down and walk around outside the school. But then I would sense that he was behind me, pushing me, and saying “Wake up, you can do this. Just go.”

And I did. And now I am working to inspire my own three boys and to encourage them to appreciate the value of a college education. I want to be their example as Amadou was mine.

If Amadou had lived, he would have loved to be here tonight, have a job in IT, maybe even help in the virtual convocation. But on that Feb. 4th night, in a senseless act of violence, against a gentle, caring man, that future was denied. Let us all work to make sure that never happens again.

Thank you so much.

Student Speaker Remarks

Aracely Rodriguez

School of Health Sciences, Human Services, and Nursing
Speech Pathology and Audiology

Good afternoon everyone. Being an Honor Student is everything I was not, and yet it is everything I've become. After my grandmother's passing in 2018, I made the decision to return to school and dedicate it to her, which gave me the desire to do well. In returning to school my major goal was to bring up my GPA so that I could compete with other students for a seat in the Master's program. I never worried about my grades; a 70 or better was fine by me. Then I realized, why should I be content with less, knowing that I can give more.

Becoming an Honor Student meant I no longer procrastinated. I gave every class my all and asked numerous clarifying questions to make sure I understood the information, without worrying about what others thought. I spent hours upon hours, studying, practicing, and conversing with other scholars and professors, before group assignments, presentations, homework, and exams. I learned to say "No" to friends and family, because my work was more important than having visitors, parties, vacations, or gatherings.

After I completed my work I would reward myself by watching a movie or show on Netflix, playing video games, listening and dancing to music, reading, and sometimes going out for a few with friends or family. I would take time to enjoy the simple things that would make me happy and keep me from feeling burned out.

However, what I believe helped me achieve my goals was the support I received from my children, family and friends, coworkers, and my husband. Knowing that my children are watching me gives me the energy I need to push through. I also made them aware of my work and school schedule, so they helped by keeping quiet while I worked, was in class, or studied. My family, friends, and coworkers allowed me to vent to them when needed, wiped a tear or two, gave me advice, and reminded me that I could do this. Above all, my husband, who has been my backbone, and my greatest supporter since day one, would tell me, "you got this, I believe in you," "I'm proud of you," or "let's order out so you can study." If it weren't for them cheering me on I wouldn't be here. They were definitely a huge part of this achievement, and I thank them from the bottom of my heart.

My goal was very personal, and yet today I hope to have inspired others, including my own children, so that they know that they have all it takes to do great things and achieve every goal they set for themselves. Congratulations Class of 2021, to my fellow honorees, good luck in all of your endeavors, and thank you.

Student Speaker Remarks

Courtney Wood
School of Education
Early Childhood Education

Good evening everyone! My name is Courtney Wood.

What does it mean to be an Honor student? I will tell you what it does not mean. An Honor student does not mean you understand every assignment that your professor assigns you. An Honor student does not mean you “have it together” because most days you don’t. An Honor student does not mean you will get the Zoom link to cooperate with you. To be an Honor student takes great strength and lots of coffee. To be an Honor student takes long nights of staying up late to write papers when you just want to be watching Netflix. To be an Honor student takes consistent communication with your professors and diligently checking Blackboard every single day or sometimes every hour. It takes perseverance, commitment, motivation, and a vision.

This past year, there have been many lives lost, from social injustices to COVID-19. Chaos has been circling around us. Lehman College and the professors have played a significant role in helping the students during this crucial time, from food banks, motivational announcements, considerations, assignment extensions, discussions, acknowledgment of events occurring, to having a vaccine site on campus. Thank you, Lehman, for all that you have done and are going to do.

We are dedicated to moving forward through our obstacles. Let us continue on our journey, with a clear focus and strong determination to win. Not just as Honor students, but as human beings for the sake of a better world.

Thank you.

Student Speaker Remarks

Perla Tolentino
School of Arts & Humanities
English

Greetings, everyone!

It gives me great pleasure to salute the distinguished Lehman College family—faculty, staff, graduates, and families of the Class of 2021. I am honored to share with you all some thoughts meant to redefine the concept of Honors.

In a society drastically changed by a deadly pandemic that continues to claim lives our GPAs can't get back, what does it really mean to be an Honors Student?

Any skill gained in any major is a tool given to us to help construct a better world, where equality and justice reign. No matter which industry we have been equipped to operate in, our being an Honors Student lies in our commitment to using the knowledge we have obtained to serve others, in hopes of a promising tomorrow.

What really labels Lehman College students as Honors Students is not just academic numbers or awards, but our ability to remain human. No degree can ever substitute for the integrity, compassion, and kindness the world needs right now.

As American writers Richard Bach and Scott Alexander shared in Jonathan Livingston Seagull and Rhinoceros Success, though our goals might seem unreachable, with dedication, perseverance, and courage, we can grow wings to fly high, helping each other overcome any social obstacles or barriers, and persevere together.

I would like to thank the Lehman faculty and department chairs for adjusting to the online education system while surviving with us. Your hard work and dedication prove you are more than educators, you are also heroes.

What an honor it is to graduate with and to be a part of the resilient and admirable Class of 2021.

Congratulations, graduates!

Student Speaker Remarks

Hector Millan

School of Natural and Social Sciences
Sociology

God Bless you all. Congratulations to all my fellow Honor students.

What does it REALLY take to become an Honors Student? I have so many to thank who helped me along the way and made this achievement happen. I want to thank God for my life, my family for their encouragement and support of my decision, and all my classmates and professors for an enriching academic experience. For, if not for my classmates who assisted me with the technical aspects of the computer, when we were plunged into remote learning, I would have been lost. Thank you. To my professors who made learning an exciting experience. Thank you. I also want to thank the Adult Degree Program staff, and the Veterans Office staff for all their assistance throughout these semesters. Please give yourselves a round of applause!!!!

Together we embarked upon an endeavor which was difficult but rewarding. For a 58-year-old man to return to school after 30 years was truly crazy, yet amazing. Like so many of you, mine was a difficult journey to the bachelor's degree. I took four classes each semester, held a full-time job, was deemed an essential worker during the pandemic, and suffered the loss of my dearest mother, whom I miss greatly. But I'm here today with Honors.

Now it is imperative that we use our experiences, our education, and our determination to make the world a better place to live in. The recent situations we have faced are our guides: the pandemic, which has made us stronger: the racial injustices, which have shown us we still have work to do in this world to educate those who cannot see past their skin color or wealth.

Never give up on your goals and dreams. I pray that all of you, my classmates and continuing students, have a happy, fulfilling, and prosperous future. All our forebears came from somewhere to create this country. Stay Strong Y Pa'lante Siempre. Much Respect to you all. God Bless you.

Undergraduate Awards

Award for Excellence in Undergraduate Studies

2021 Winner: Carlos Perez Valle

Carlos Perez Valle is a Speech Language Pathology Major, who graduated with a 4.0 GPA. Besides his academic achievements, he was a recipient of several awards for his activism for inclusion and equity in the field of Speech Language Pathology. Carlos has consistently demonstrated both academic excellence as well as outstanding leadership and commitment to the discipline of speech-language pathology through his recognized advocacy for inclusion and equity of minority students in programs in speech-language pathology and for the promotion of public awareness of communication disorders in children and adults.

This award is given to a student who has demonstrated excellence in being educated, empowered and engaged in their academic studies. The recipient has demonstrated outstanding academic achievement by graduating summa cum laude with a 4.0 GPA, and also has excelled in disciplinary and/or co-curricular activities related to their major, thus modeling excellence as an empowered young scholar who shows engagement in their discipline.

The Global Citizenship Award

2021 Winner: Leslie Ferreira

Leslie Ferreira, is a Business Administration major who has served as a global ambassador for the Office of International Programs and Community Engagement. She is a leader in the Peace Corps Prep program and is now certified as a global citizen. She exemplifies why teaching global local is necessary for Lehman College students to gain a global perspective from right here in the Bronx. As summer global ambassador for IPCE in 2020, Leslie not only seized opportunities for cross-cultural learning but she created them. During that summer, she focused on spreading inclusivity by creating a list of resources to engage students in thoughtful conversation through literature and media. Even after her summer with us, Leslie continued to bring us enriching opportunities that could be shared with our students. She is a true advocate for her peers and a source of inspiration to her community through her efforts with Jumpstart and the Bronx Recovery Corps as well as the multiple students groups she is a member of on campus.

This award is given to a student who has exemplified global citizenship and service during their time at Lehman College. This student has embraced unique and creative ways to engage with communities across the globe in areas including, but not limited to, study abroad, international service-learning, global studies, and Peace Corps Prep.

Excellence in Leadership Award

2021 Winner: Shantal Muñoz

Shantal Muñoz, is a Health Education and Promotion Major (with concentration in Community Health and Nutrition) with a 3.8 GPA, who started as a community engagement intern with the Department of International Programs and Community Engagement in the summer of 2020; the first few months of the pandemic. As our office scrambled to find ways to connect with students, Shantal took an active role in strengthening our social media presence and our strategies for student outreach. Shantal was selected as a Peer Educator throughout the 2020-2021 academic year, where she continued to approach tasks with a cheerful attitude and became a great office representative organizing many of our volunteer events, while planning for social distancing, remote activities and meaningful engagement. Shantal will move forward to accomplish great things as she seeks out opportunities that focus on community development.

This award recognizes a student who has shown outstanding leadership during his or her time at Lehman College. Through innovation, motivation, initiative, and perseverance, this person has demonstrated a commitment to creating positive change in our campus community.
